

Top: Dunes at Sossusvlei in the Namib Desert.

Middle: Desiccated trees at Dead Vlei in the Namib Desert.

Left: Quiver Tree Forest in southern Namibia.

The dunes in Namibia (top) are in dry desert with no water around, while the dunes of Athabasca are sliced by rivers such as the William.

Right: Sand at varying depths forms the riverbed of the William.

Top: Repairing a sled.

Middle: Building an igloo.

Below: Life inside the igloo.

Visiting harp seals on an ice floe in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Top: Moai at Tongariki.

Below: Moai at the base of the quarry at Rano Raraku.

Top: The rising sun illuminates the spires of Mount Fitzroy in Argentina.

Below: Torres del Paine National Park, Chile.

